

Religious Class Allowed by Law Says Judge Staley

Judge Staley Decides It Is Not a Violation of Law to Allow School Pupils to be Dismissed Earlier in Order to Receive Religious Instruction Outside.

In a decision handed down Saturday, Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Starkey of Albany ruled that dismissal of school children for thirty minutes one afternoon a week to allow them opportunity to receive voluntary religious instruction outside the school does not violate the state constitution or the education law, and he denied the application for a writ of mandamus made by Joseph Lewis of Poughkeepsie, president of the Free Thinkers' Society, to compel Dr. Frank P. Graves, commissioner of education, to order the practice discontinued. Mr. Lewis also specifically requested an order against the White Plains school authorities.

Judge Stanley found that the facts in the White Plains case constituted violation of the educational provision that neither the state nor any of its subdivisions could permit its property to be used "in aid of maintenance, either than for examination or inspection, of any school or institution of learning, wholly or in part under the control or direction of any religious denomination or in which any denomination or tenet or doctrine is taught."

"The mere excusing of pupils at the volition of their parents," said Justice Stanley's memorandum, "for a half-hour period each week to attend religious instruction outside the school and at places unrelated to school activities, in the free exercise and enjoyment of their religious professions, does not constitute the use of public property or credit money in aid of any institution of learning under the control of any religious denomination."

THE "STORY" IN MUSIC.

Some of those industrious interpreters of musical compositions now hold not only that every such composition tells a story but that music may give expression to humor and even wit. To such an extreme has arrived the persistent effort to render articulate what is essentially inarticulate. It is true that we are made to smile by orchestration wherein the trombones and oboes convey a suggestion of the squawking of barnyard fowls, and there are similar amusing effects, but such effects can hardly be described as humor, let alone wit.

With a true poet's insight Sidney Lanier defined music—the highest grade music—as "love in search of a word." And he might well have added that the word is never found. As for the "story" that a great symphony is said to tell when performed by an orchestra, it is one "story" to one listener and another "story" to another; indeed the same listener may hear quite a different "story" another time. Generally speaking, music is an appeal to the love of beauty, but its most definite effect is the stirring of the emotions and stimulation of the imagination. Like wine, it stirs the inner man, rouses the real man. To the good citizen it brings worthy inspiration, to the crook new cunning in schemes for success in law-defying operations.

Even composers have tried to make music convey ideas or mean something that can be expressed in words, but listeners have not been able to recognize the same "meaning" until after they learned what it was supposed to be. The attempt to give music a definite message that all may receive without prompting seems to be about as fruitless as to endeavor to make sunshine speak.

NEW COPYRIGHT BILLS.

Until within a few years an author could enjoy the material fruits of his labors for only 28 years and his children after him were altogether deprived, although the descendants of a maker of soap or cereals could inherit for a thousand years. During some years past an author has been permitted to renew his copyrights for another 28 years, thus giving him and his heirs property rights for 56 years. With good reason it has been urged that this span, which may not cover the life of the author himself, is far from enough, and in consequence there are now two bills to lengthen the period of literary ownership before the Patent Committee of Congress. In both the Vestal bill and the Perkins bill exclusive control of literary property is extended to the lifetime of the author and fifty years thereafter.

Though this is a considerable extension, it is to be commended not only as doing greater justice than the present arrangement to the individual author, but as providing a longer continuance of profit in and a spur toward the achievement of the higher grade of literature that lives. It may be argued that the ephemeral "best sellers" of a season, or a few seasons, are profitable beyond their worth in a brief period, but the best work, the work that lives, rarely gains such immediate reward and may never reach large profit, appreciation of it being often of slow growth and never likely to extend to the great mass of readers. It is possible that one of the two new copyright bills before Congress is preferable to the other and that both call for amendment in some particulars, but in both the proposition to lengthen the period of copyright is good policy as well as an effort to do simple justice.

Miss Elizabeth Marbury of New York, who has been prominent in connection with both politics and dramatics, writes to the New York World: "The trouble is that we hear about 'days' of both sexes, but we never meet them. That there are hundreds of men and women in our land who are very good for President is indubitable, but this country, while announcing them as 'leading' does not prevent the majority of them from taking a drink while 'leading.' Miss Marbury's conclusion that we are a nation of hypocrites as well as of lawbreakers is likely to be discounted by some readers because of her accompanying frank confession that she is known as "wet old maid."

It looks as if men may be expected to follow women in asking that the marriage ritual be modified so that they will be required to promise less. When asked at the altar in Richmond the other day, "Will you take this woman," etc., the bridegroom, instead of saying "I will," as usual, insisted on saying only, "I will do the best I can." Whereupon the ceremony was halted and later the license was returned to the county clerk's office.

THE IMPORTANT VITAMIN.

During the period of 1909 to 1920 one of the European countries found that a great number of an unusual type of eye ailment were treated in hospitals.

Investigation showed that the natural surface of the eye structures were being replaced by a hard horn like tissue.

This was found to be due to the "peculiar circumstance of a dairy country exporting the most important products providing the fat soluble A factor", their own people being short of this valuable food element. It is found in animal fats.

However, it has been found that deficiency in fat soluble A affects many other surfaces than the eye, and gives rise to trouble in nose, throat, lungs, kidneys, and surfaces in other glands. It would seem that the natural soft lining cells have this hardened cell formation gradually growing beneath them, and these hard cells push the natural cells off the surface, and take their place. Thus instead of a soft cell or a secreting cell, there is left a hard, or horn like cell, something like the nails on the fingers. Besides this growth of hard horn like tissues, there is a great loss of fat, and a wasting of some of the organs of the body.

The growth of this hard tissue in the lining of the duct of a gland can be so extensive as to actually close the duct, as in the eyes, where it produces a cyst or cavity.

Some one is now asking the question as to whether that scourge, cancer, has any relation to deficiency of fat soluble A in the diet. Most of us would rather question this because it is our people who live well and look well that seem to be more frequently the victims of cancer.

And yet it is the same tissue, surface tissue of glands and other organs that is affected in cancer. And also it is a hard tissue formation in cancer that just takes the place of the natural surface. This may not mean anything of course insofar as cancer is concerned, but it is remarkable that the one special tissue is affected in both conditions.

The only point for you and me is that for our youngsters and ourselves we see that a sufficient amount of Vitamin A as found in milk, cream, yolk of eggs, and animals, is a part of the daily food intake.

IRONING MADE EASY!

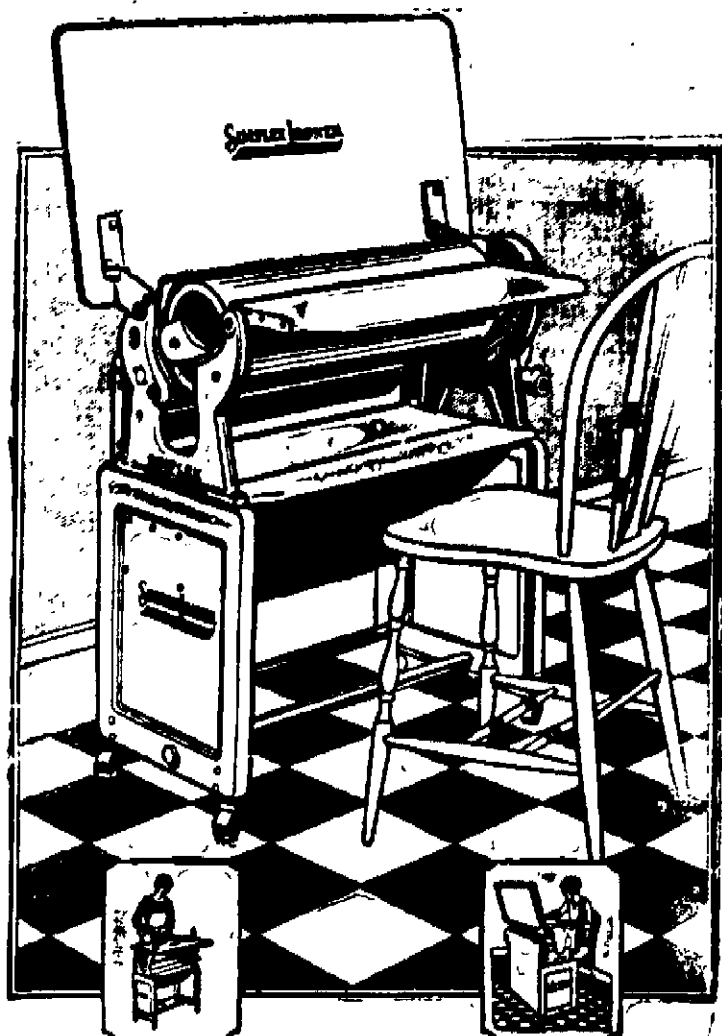

Illustration shows Junior Simplex with table top attachment which may be added at a small additional cost if desired.

Lifting a six-pound iron several hundred times during an ironing and pushing it back and forth for hours is a needlessly hard day's work. The Junior Simplex itself will do the average week's ironing easily in about an hour and a half—and do it beautifully.

The Simplex irons everything—men's shirts, trousers, collars, underwear, women's and children's dresses, lingerie, aprons, handkerchiefs, and, of course, all the flat work—including curtains, doilies, center pieces, dresser scarfs, table cloths, napkins, sheets and towels.

Let us demonstrate in your own home—we want you to judge the Junior Simplex for yourself.

The cash price of $99.50 applies to the gas heated ironer. The electrically heated model can also be furnished at the special cash price of $119.50—(regular price $129.00). This offer is for a limited time only.

Today's Story in New York History

By Frederic A. Godcharles.

(Copyright, 1926, by the Author)

Patriotic Women of New York Met to Organize Women's Relief Association, April 26, 1861.

Twenty-four hours after the evacuation of Fort Sumter President Lincoln issued a call for seventy-five thousand militia from the several States to serve for three months in suppressing the armed rebellion. The quota of New York was seventeen regiments, or thirteen thousand men.

On April 26 an immense war meeting was held in Union Square, in the city of New York. So great was the crowd that it was divided into four sections, presided over respectively by John A. Dix, Hamilton Fish, ex-mayor Havemeyer and Moses M. Grinnell.

A Committee of Safety was composed of the most distinguished citizens of New York. They met on the same evening and organized the famous Union Defense Committee.

Closely following the Union Square meeting of the men came the action of their noble women. At the very instant that thousands of loyal men were hastening to the colors, loyal women were devising plans and taking measures for their aid and comfort.

On the day of President Lincoln's call for troops, Miss Almira Bates, of Charleston, Mass., took steps to found an association for the purpose. On the same day women of Bridgeport, Conn., organized a society to furnish nurses for the sick and wounded soldiers, and provisions and clothing for them.

It was only a few days later when a circular letter was addressed to "The Women of New York, and especially to those already engaged in preparing, during the time of the war, and sickness in the Army." It set, forth the importance of system and concentration to effect the best results in that field.

This spontaneous outcropping of the tenderest feelings of the women of New York promptly suggested the formation of a powerful society. It was the germ of the most important auxiliary to the medical department of the Union armies which the war created—the Sanitary Commission.

Between fifty and sixty benevolent women of New York met by appointment on April 26, 1861, when a "Woman's Central Christian Association of Relief" was suggested. These women formed the plan, and the women of the city were invited to assemble in the Cooper Union on the 29th to consider its permanent organization. Many leading gentlemen were invited to be present.

The response to the call was ample in number, character and financial resources. David Dudley Field presided, and Hon. Hannibal Hamlin, Vice President of the United States, addressed the meeting. An organization was effected and the venerable Dr. Valentine Mott was chosen its president.

The necessity for a much broader field of action was soon perceived, and early in June the Secretary of War authorized the formation of a "Commission of Inquiry and Advice in respect of the sanitary interests of the United States." Eminent civilians and soldiers on January 12, 1862 formed the commission. Rev. Henry W. Bellows, D. D., pastor of All Souls' (Unitarian) Church, the real author, was chosen its president, and Professor A. D. Baché, and Dr. Elisha Harris, vice presidents.

Dr. Bellows submitted a plan of operation which was adopted and the association assumed the name of the United States Sanitary Commission. Frederic Law Olmsted was appointed its resident secretary, and became its real manager.

Thus the patriotic women of New York were instrumental in organizing this important commission which raised immense sums of money and performed invaluable services to the soldiers in the field.

It followed the armies closely to all campaigns, and before the smoke of conflict had been fairly lifted, there was the commission with its tents, vehicles, supplies and necessities.

When the war was ended, and the work of the Sanitary Commission was over, it was made plain, it was found that the loyal people had given to it supplies valued at fifteen millions, and money to the amount of more than five millions.

How Indian Caves "Cold"

When a Glacier park Indian catches cold he drags his bare feet and pants himself in his outdoor sweat bath, which is about as near to nature a contrivance as is possible. The Indian department believes so. Wilson brought one back so that each end is in the ground four feet apart, forming a framework. A fire is built in the center of a pile of stones on the ground. Stones and branches are put over the framework of logs and when the fire is underdone and the patient steps in, with a pair of "dirt" shoes, sprinkling the water of the hot sweat, getting on about upper sweat bath. MR. BEAVER'S HOME

"My great grandfather, or maybe it was my great, great grandfather, for I never am very good on family history," commenced Mr. Beaver, "made a beautiful home for his bride Miss Jennie Beaver."

He paused and looked at Miss Charlotte Beaver, hoping she would say something to help him along for he was rather shy.

"How interesting," remarked Miss Charlotte Beaver.

That didn't help poor Mr. Beaver in the least. But he was certainly not so shy that he couldn't speak if he had to—although he dreaded it. But still it seemed as if he must do it all alone now without any help or encouragement from Miss Beaver. Anyway she was worth it.

So Mr. Beaver commenced and while he was talking Miss Beaver was saying to herself,

"I'm so glad that I didn't seem too eager. It's much better for a Miss Beaver to be bashful than it is for a Mr. Beaver to be shy."

"Yes," continued Mr. Beaver, with beating heart and a shaky voice, "my great grandfather, or maybe my great-great-grandfather did build a beautiful home."

"Don't bother whether he was your great grandfather, or your great-great-grandfather, tell me the rest of your story."

But she managed to keep quiet.

"And I was wondering, yes, I was wondering—" (And Miss Charlotte Beaver knew what was coming!)—"I was both wondering and hoping if I couldn't make a home for you."

Very industrious.

Miss Charlotte Beaver smoothed her beautiful fur, and turning her eyes upon Mr. Beaver said,

"I only hope I make as nice a mate as Miss Jennie Beaver did."

"I am sure of it, sure of it," said Mr. Beaver who was now so very happy.

Oh, he was certainly a happy beaver, and a proud one, too, to have won the affection of so fine and lovely and beautiful a beaver as Miss Charlotte Beaver.

Beavers, as you know, are very industrious, and even when they are in the zoo, as these beavers were, they love to work and keep busy.

When beavers are free they go off, though, for long rests and holidays in the summer.

For they know enough not to work all the time.

They know enough to enjoy their work and to enjoy the beautiful world and the swamps and wanderings, too.

They always rest in the summer time when they are free and have gorgeous vacations.

Mr. Beaver made his home for Miss Charlotte Beaver with an underground water passage to the home.

He had been given good material with which to work in the zoo.

But he worked only at night for he did not wish any of the visitors who came to the zoo to see the home he was building while he was still at work.

Beavers do not like to be watched when they work and will not work in the daytime when they are in a zoo.

Nor do they often work in the daytime anywhere. They like the nighttime for working.

But he certainly made a beautiful home for Miss Charlotte Beaver with a fine private canal for her own special use.

Could any young beaver bride ask for more?

Charlotte Beaver was as pleased as pleased could be.

Horticultural News

PEACH TREE BORER DOES MUCH DAMAGE

It would be hard to find a five-year-old peach tree anywhere in Illinois that has not been injured by the peach tree borer, according to S. C. Chandler, assistant entomologist of the natural history survey at the University of Illinois. Fortunately, this pest, which is one of the worst insect enemies of peach trees, can be kept in check by the use of paradichlorobenzene, a new chemical control for borers. The borers always pass the winter in the inner bark of peach trees as pale, white worms from one-fourth to half an inch long. These worms can be found from ten inches above to six inches below the ground, but are most abundant just below the surface. Their presence in a tree is indicated by masses of gum mixed with brown grass or sawdust coming from the injured trunk.

Half an ounce of paradichlorobenzene, or P. D. B., as it is commonly called, is enough for each tree between one and three years old. Trees from four to five years old should each get three-fourths of an ounce, and trees from six to ten years old a full ounce. Trees that have not grown one full season should not be treated at all. The amount of P. D. B. to be used for a tree should never be guessed, but should be measured out in a measuring cup.

Before the P. D. B. is applied, the grass, weeds and excess masses of gum should be scraped away from the base of the trees, but care should be taken not to scrape away so much earth that the chemical will be below the burrow entrances of the borers. The P. D. B. should be spread on the ground in a band an inch or two wide and about an inch away from the trunk of the tree at all points. The chemical should not touch the tree. Four or five spadefuls of earth are put over the band of P. D. B. and firmed down with the back of the spade.

Prune Raspberry Bushes After Fruiting Season

After the fruiting season is over the raspberry canes that have borne fruit should be cut. This may be done at any time from the end of harvest in late summer up to the annual spring pruning, but the best time is as soon as possible after the crop is off. The fruit of the next season is borne on the new canes.

The advantages in cutting out the old canes are that they are out of the way of the young growth and that the spread of the diseases and insects harbored in them is prevented. The young canes that are weak or diseased should also be taken out at the same time.

The canes of black raspberries are usually headed back in the spring by pinching off the tips when the cane has reached a desirable height. This encourages side branching and a larger fruiting area. Red raspberries are usually allowed to grow unchecked as they do not produce strong side branches as in the case of the black raspberries.

Horticulture Facts

Continue to spray potatoes, celery and fall strawberries until they are ready for harvest. Cultivation around small fruits should cease.

Bitter rot of apples may be controlled by liberal applications of bordeaux mixture, applied in a mistlike spray. In orchards particularly severely infected it may be necessary to spray with bordeaux about forty days after the petals have fallen and make three additional applications of bordeaux at intervals of two weeks.

Black rot disease of grapes shows up on the leaves as nearly circular, brown spots which are sharply defined. Bordeaux mixture is the control. The first spray should be applied just as the buds are swelling in the early spring. The next application should be made as the buds unfold, and afterward spray the vines about every two weeks until five or six applications have been made.

High yields require good stands and good stands may be best secured with good seed. Even better seed must be of an adapted variety if maximum yields are expected.

Just what crop to use as an orchard covering depends upon local circumstances. It is believed that oats sown about the first of August make the best cover crop for the farm orchard. The cover crop must germinate well and make heavy growth during the fall and also stand up sufficiently to hold the berries and stone.

Pinkies Use Many Pounds
Pinkies are very performers when they are at work. During a formal concert or rehearsal a pinkie will often apply 2,000 pounds of pressure to the keys in a minute, read 1,500 times and make 2,000 finger drops in the same period of time.

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS
HIS DESERTS
"Well, what's the matter with you?" inquired Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, addressing a gent looking out through the bars of the jail in Tumla-ville.
"I'm in here for shooting my brother-in-law," replied the prisoner.
"Kill him?"
"Nope!"
"You ort to be in jail all the rest of yore—p'tu—life."

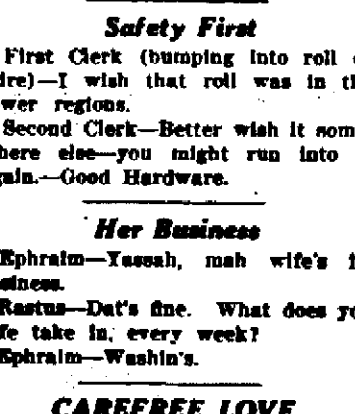

A Little Bit Humorous
A CLEW
Policeman (to bespectacled old professor who has witnessed the smash)—You say you saw the accident, sir. What was the number of the car that knocked this man down?
Professor—I'm afraid I've forgotten it. But I remember noting that if it were multiplied by itself, the cube root of the product would be equal to the sum of the digits reversed.

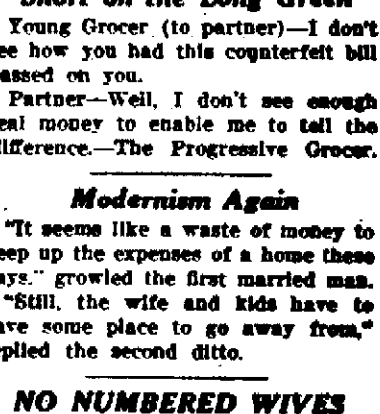

A FINE FELLOW TO BOOT
Mabelle—Father, don't you think Jack a handsome man?
Dad (grimly)—Oh, yes—and a fine fellow to boot.
Charlestonian Chatter
"I think the floor is wonderful," said he in manner sweet.
"That's your mistake," the girl replied. "You're dancing on my feet."
That Faithful String
"What's that piece of cord tied round your finger for?"
"My wife put it there to remind me to post her letter."
"And did you do it?"
"No, she forgot to give it to me."—The Outlook.
The Goat
"The eggs I bought from you yesterday weren't fresh!"
"It's your own fault!"
"How my fault?"
"I offered them to you last week and you wouldn't have them!"

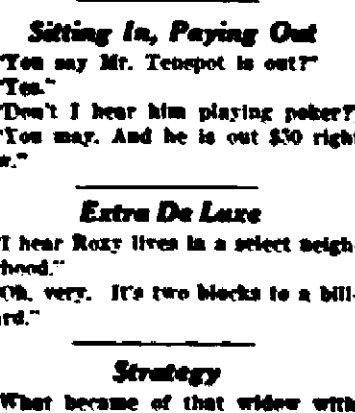

SOUNDS QUEER, EH?
"Financially how much are you out?"
"Financially I'm all in."
That's Soft
He slipped upon the sidewalk and although he took a spill, it didn't hurt because he only fell against his will.
Shattered Romance
"Lawdy, but Ah suttinly does hate to lose dis job," sighed the colored maid upon being discharged.
"You have a family to support?" asked her late mistress.
"No'm, but Ah's got an engagement to be broke," groaned the girl.—American Legion Weekly.
Not Just Then
Goodfellow Bridegroom—Step up, old man! Don't you want to kiss the bride?
Bashful Guest—Well, er—if it's all the same to you, I'd rather some other time.—American Legion Weekly.
Short on the Long Green
Young Grocer (to partner)—I don't see how you had this counterfeit bill passed on you.
Partner—Well, I don't see enough real money to enable me to tell the difference.—The Progressive Grocer.

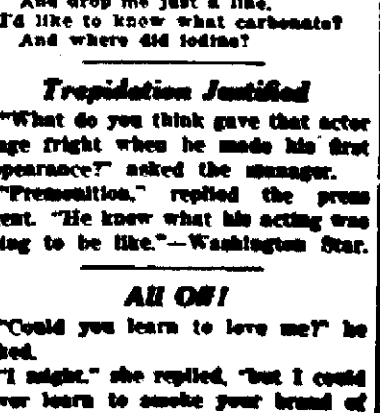

CAREFREE LOVE
Ephraim—Yessah, mah wife's in business.
Rastus—Dat's fine. What does yo' wife take in, every week?
Ephraim—Washin's.
Polite Peasy
Old Homer was a poet tough. Who wrote of battle scenes. I fancy he'd be much too tough For current magazines.
Sitting In, Paying Out
"You say Mr. Teapot is out?"
"Yes."
"Don't I hear him playing poker?"
"You say. And he is out $30 right now."
Extra De Luxe
"I hear Roy lives in a select neighborhood."
"Oh, very. It's two blocks to a bill-board."

NO NUMBERED WIVES
"It seems like a waste of money to keep up the expenses of a home these days," growled the first married man.
"Still, the wife and kids have to have some place to go away from," replied the second ditto.
A Plan for Information
Oh, chemist, please investigate And drop me just a line, I'd like to know what carbonate? And where did iodine?
Trepidation Justified
"What do you think gave that actor stage fright when he made his first appearance?" asked the manager.
"Promotion," replied the press agent. "He knew what his acting was going to be like."—Washington Star.
All Off!
"Could you learn to love me?" he asked.
"I might," she replied, "but I could never learn to smoke your brand of cigarettes."

Unforgivable
Wife—I hope you will forgive me for having left you!
Husband—Certainly—but not for having come back!
Paralyzed It
Mother—Didn't your conscience tell you not to touch that cake?
Elsie—No, mother, I grabbed quick.
Boys Attracted by Color
The supposition is that boys are attracted to Sowers primarily by their color, but the color does have a certain attraction. Eggs, for instance, will attract boys most readily.

LAST NIGHT on THE RADIO
"Twas a great night for radio golf and the DX bands held high revel, although most that they heard was serious. From WBB in the south to WJYC in the north, WBB in the west and WOAI in the southwest serious were on tap, ranging from severely orthodox Baptist and Presbyterian in New York and Atlanta to the reading of Christian Science scriptures in Kansas City.
Then there was WMBF, which is never even under suspicion of being religious, the two chains of music from New York and a lot of other attractions.
WDBS came back for the morning service but, probably owing to weather conditions, was not up to its usual standard. This, of course, brought in blueprints, who made matters much worse.
Saturday night, those whose patience was sufficient to endure through the storm of static were well rewarded.
As with WDBS Sunday morning, when the blower blows his blower when reception is not first-class. In his vain attempt to improve reception he put on more power, blower and blower what little there is. That is why blower is worse than other conditions are poor.
Every man is boss of his own house—when the family is away.

The Proposed Broadway Theatre As A Business Proposition

The money-making opportunity for a large modern theatre on Broadway is so unusually good that were we, the people of Kingston and Ulster County, to neglect it at this time, it would be the inviting of chain theatre operators to locate here, to capitalize on this opportunity.

My plan is to have local people share in the profits of a fine big modern playhouse, and to bring here the best of productions, such as we want to see.

Let us go about this job quickly and have a theatre that will be a Kingston proposition. We can own it, operate it, and divide the profits.

A $200 seven per cent debenture bond gives you one share of common stock which should earn over $14 each year.

Floods Threaten Up-State Cities

Albany, N. Y., April 26.—Cities and villages along the upper Hudson river today were threatened by one of the worst floods in years. Heavy property damage is feared in many places.

The docks along the Albany river front were covered by 18 inches of water early this afternoon and the Hudson was steadily rising.

Heavy rains Saturday night and yesterday through the Adirondack region, in addition to the melting snow on the uplands, were responsible for the high water. Streams in the mountains today were raging torrents and in many places small bridges were swept away.

The Saranac River at Plattsburg has reached its highest point in over thirty years, according to word received here today.

At Glens Falls, the Hudson was reported the highest it has been since the big flood of 1913.

The docks along the river at Troy today were partly inundated and business houses in the vicinity were preparing to move their goods from cellars to higher levels.

The cold snap of last night helped to check the rising river, but with rain predicted for tonight, old-time river men said they would not be surprised if the high water equalled the flood condition of 1913 in another 24 hours.

Boats have not been operated between Albany and Troy since Saturday.

The Delaware and Hudson tracks along the river front were partly covered by water early this afternoon.

The Hudson was nearly nine feet above normal at 1 o'clock this afternoon, according to the local weather bureau.

OUTLOOK BRIGHT FOR FRENCH DEBT SETTLEMENT.

Washington, April 26.—The outlook for an early agreement in the French debt negotiations was considerably brightened here today after the American Debt Commission had examined in more detail the proposal submitted last week by Ambassador Borenger.

"We are not far apart," said Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

There are "a few points," however, in the plan submitted by M. Borenger which are unacceptable to the American government, and the ambassador will be requested within the next few days to bring these in to conformity with American expectations.

VETERAN ACTOR VICTIM OF STAGE ACCIDENT

Chicago, April 26.—Ralph Mac Kenzie, 41, veteran actor, is dead here today, the victim of an accident which occurred during his vaudeville act at a local theatre Friday.

Physicians said his neck was broken. He called "Hitts and Hitts" was a college sketch. There was a hazing scene.

MacKenzie, as a professor, was seized by students and tossed in a blanket. Friday night he fell from the blanket and struck his head on the floor. Three famous specialists could not save his life.

Financial and Commercial

New York, April 26.—After an interrupted advance of nearly four full sessions, in the course of which the speculative leaders recovered from five to thirty-five points of their previous losses, the stock market went through a period of reaction today. The motor stocks and industrials were offered quite freely, both for profit-taking and short selling from the professionals, in addition to which a few of the specialty stocks developed acute weakness and sold down to the lowest prices of the year.

General Motors sold off about two points in the early trading, but buying demand was sufficient to prevent a decline of any large proportions, and ruling prices were considerably above last week's average.

Nickel Plate's advance of three points to 162, completing a gain of nine points since last Thursday, was the feature of the railroad stocks. Related buying of New York Central, Atchafalpa and other dividend rails resulted in new gains of from one to three points. New Haven, Katy, and other speculative rails also enjoyed a good buying demand.

The public utility stocks spurted in the fourth hour. The Armour A stock broke through to a new low at 15 1/2, down nearly ten points from the high of the year. Freeport Texas was the outstanding strong spot in the low priced specialties, advancing to above 32.

The volume of transactions was about 1,000,000 shares for the first three hours, against 1,500,000 in the same period on Friday call money ruled at three per cent.

Wesleyan Dry
By Slight Margin

Middletown, April 26.—Wesleyan University students have favored the present dry regime of the nation by a majority of three votes. Announcement was made here today that out of 550 students enrolled at Wesleyan, 357 participated in a referendum on the liquor question. Out of 26 of the faculty who cared to vote 18 stood for dryness and 8 for molasses.

Students assigned for the votes were but two. The wetts voted on the proposition of personal liberty and the drys on the theory that seven years isn't long enough for a fair test of the Volstead Act.

Ulster Classis Against Saloons

Adopts Report Which States Belief That Modification of Volstead Law Would Reduce Saloon and Nullify Prohibition—Favors Motion Picture Censorship.

At the recent meeting of the Classis of Ulster of the Reformed Church, the following report on public morals submitted by the Rev. W. F. Stowe, pastor of the Church of the Comforter, Kingston, was adopted unanimously:

One of the greatest moral battles of the centuries has been the fight against intoxicating liquors and the evils which accompany them. It was a great victory for moral legislation when the Eighteenth Amendment was placed in the Constitution of the United States. The enforcement of law, as expressed in the Constitution of the United States. The enforcement of law, as expressed in the Constitution of the United States. The enforcement of law, as expressed in the Constitution of the United States.

We are confronted as Christians and as loyal American citizens by a situation that challenges our serious attention, namely the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment. A determined opposition to prohibition covers the states from ocean to ocean. Millions of liquor money is backing the movement to nullify and eventually to destroy prohibition. The crucial fight is now on. Every friend of morality and prohibition should accept the present situation as a challenge to his own intelligence and loyalty, and answer it with determination and redoubled diligence.

That prohibition has improved conditions in many ways throughout our country no one can gainsay. Some time ago the Los Angeles Times made a survey of prohibition in the State of California among more than one hundred of the largest industrial institutions, and a verdict attested by a large majority of the workers themselves prompted the "Times" to print the following which I quote word for word: "Prohibition has improved the financial, social and industrial conditions of the average working man at least twenty five per cent. It has added a like increase to his efficiency on the job. It has brought to himself and his family a well being hitherto unknown; and well being has brought contentment in its wake."

As members of this Classis we would go on record as being decidedly in favor of a law in this state that will rigidly enforce the Volstead Act. We vigorously protest against any compromise which would tend to restore the saloon, and practically nullify prohibition. We strongly favor placing the appointment of prohibition agents under civil service, and taking it out of politics.

We deplore the efforts of lawless and un-Christian elements to break down the sanctity of the Christian Sabbath, and turn the Lord's Day into a day of business, dissipation, and commercial recreation, and will resist to the uttermost all such efforts.

We earnestly protest against the use of motion picture for poisoning the public mind by a canting presentation of crime and licentiousness and would favor a censorship over all motion pictures.

Very respectfully submitted,
W. F. STOWE,
Classis Agent on Public Morals.

The Classis accepted and adopted this report unanimously.

BITUMINOUS INDUSTRY WANTS TO BE LET ALONE

Washington, April 26.—The bituminous coal industry today asked congress to be let alone.

Appearing before the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce, Harry L. Gandy, secretary of the National Coal Association, denied any need for action by congress along the lines of the numerous proposals introduced this session providing for fact finding commissions and emergency legislation.

Replying to the charge the industry is disorganized, Gandy declared that major responsibility for such disorganization could be placed at the door of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, "which makes it impossible for operators to reach any agreement regarding production and prices."

Referring to a suggestion that a " czar " or dictator should be chosen for the industry, Gandy said "The mere effort of bituminous operators to agree to the selection of such an official head, with such jurisdiction over production and prices as would be beneficial to the industry, would result in immediate action by the Department of Justice."

Architect Shows
His Confidence

Douglas P. Hill, the New York architect who drew the plans for the new Broadway Central Theatre, has wired Harry Lasarus that he will take gold debenture bonds to the value of one half of his fees as architect. Mr. Hill says he has had large experience with similar theatre enterprises and considers the new theatre in Kingston "one hundred per cent excellent" as a business proposition.

THREE MEN NEAR DEATH IN STABBING AFFAIR

Albany, N. Y., April 26.—Three men were near death in the Memorial Hospital here today and a fourth was suffering from minor cuts as a result of a stabbing affray in a restaurant here late yesterday.

The wounded men are: Louis Tagliaterra, 41, proprietor of the restaurant; Tony Cerasani, 36, Claremont Hotel, New York; and John Manicini, 51, of Albany. All three were stabbed in the abdomen and physicians hold slight hope for their recovery. Ernest Basini, a roomer over the restaurant was slashed about the face.

The fracas started, according to police, when a man alleged to be from New York city, attempted to rifle the cash register in the restaurant. The proprietor and a few of his friends attempted to stop him and the knife followed. At least six men took part in the fight police said. The fight spread to the street where police finally broke it up with drawn revolvers. Two men, both of Albany were arrested and are being held pending a further investigation of the affair. The man who attempted to rob the place, however, escaped.

Play at Grange Hall.
The play, "The Country Minister," will be given at the Lake Katrine Grange Hall on Friday evening, April 30, under the auspices of the "Helpers' Class, Mrs. Hugh Ferguson, teacher. The C. E. Society of Hurley will present the play.

Grabs Burglar,
Dies in Fall

New York, April 26.—Hospitals were being searched today for the burglar who Jack Kaye, a fur salesman, dragged with him when he was plunged two stories to his death, the climax of a grapple on a fire escape.

Witnesses asserted that they saw the burglar arise, clutch his side, and limp away.

Kaye, clad only in pajamas, followed the burglar out on the fire escape. The burglar, a larger man, bent Kaye over the railing but Kaye, clinging desperately to his antagonist, took him with him when he fell. Kaye was underneath when they landed. He died an hour later.

TRUCK BURNED SATURDAY AT STONY HOLLOW

A Reo truck conveying paint, oils and other merchandise to the summer home of Augustus Oaks at Cold Brook was wrecked by fire Saturday afternoon at Stony Hollow. The machine, in charge of two men, was entirely consumed when it ran off the road into a ditch. Mr. Oaks had offered the use of the truck to the Rev. Father Scully for hauling supplies to the boys' camp at Mt. Tremper during the summer months.

PROFESSORS ATTACK COLLEGE FOOTBALL

New York, April 26.—Intercollegiate football faced a new attack today from university intellectual forces following its condemnation from the American Association of University Professors in a committee report in the April bulletin of the association.

Charging that the undue emphasis put on college football was conducive to drinking, dishonesty and the distorting of the student's viewpoint, the committee recommended limiting each playing season to four games or allowing students to play football for only one year.

Faculty coaching systems conducted "for higher standards of sportsmanship" were also recommended. Immediate appointment of committees from colleges to formulate a new intercollegiate football agreement along these lines was suggested by the committee.

BALDWIN STRIVING TO

London, April 26.—Premier Baldwin was today still engaged in trying to arrange a last minute truce in the crisis in the coal industry.

He summoned leaders of the Trades Union Congress to Downing street for conference, searching for some solution from these prominent labor leaders.

New Issue

$3,000,000

Hudson River Navigation Corporation

6 1/2% Convertible (Closed) First Mortgage Twenty-Five Year Sinking Fund Gold Bonds

Convertible, at the option of the holder, anytime up to and including May 1, 1931, on the basis of one $1,000 bond for 50 shares of common stock represented by voting trust certificates and thereafter up to and including May 1, 1934, into common stock on the same basis. Bonds called for redemption before expiration of the conversion privilege may be converted up to ten days before the date of such redemption.

Redeemable by a cumulative sinking fund of 2% per annum of the authorized amount of the issue, beginning September 1, 1927, which will redeem the entire issue before maturity, or by purchase in the open market at or under 100%; if not so redeemable then by semi-annual drawings by lot of 100%.

Drawn bonds become payable on the next following interest date at 100% and accrued interest. Callable, as a whole or in part, at 100% and accrued interest for payment on any interest date upon thirty days' notice. Dated May 1, 1926. Due May 1, 1951. Coupons May 1, 1926, 1927, 1928, 1929, 1930, 1931, 1932, 1933, 1934, 1935, 1936, 1937, 1938, 1939, 1940, 1941, 1942, 1943, 1944, 1945, 1946, 1947, 1948, 1949, 1950, 1951.

Payable: Principal and interest in U. S. Gold Dollars of the present standard of weight and fineness at the principal office of The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, Trustee, New York. The Company agrees to pay interest free of the normal Federal Income Tax, not exceeding 2%. The Company also agrees to reimburse holders of bonds, if requested within 60 days after payment, for the Pennsylvania, Com. & Mercantile, Maryland and Kentucky personal property taxes on the Massachusetts income tax.

TRUSTEE: THE FARMERS' LOAN AND TRUST COMPANY, NEW YORK.

The Hudson River Navigation Corporation has been organized under the laws of the State of Delaware for the purpose of acquiring the properties formerly controlled by the Hudson Navigation Company and its predecessor companies, the Peoples Line and the Citizens Line.

For more than 60 years this line and its predecessors have rendered an essential transportation service upon New York State's great water highway, between New York City and the Cities of Albany and Troy.

Capitalization:
6 1/2% Gold Bonds (this issue) $3,000,000
Cumulative Preferred Stock (Per Value $100)
Authorized $1,000,000
Issued and Outstanding $ 375,000
Common Stock (no par)
Authorized 60,000 shares
Issued and outstanding 30,000 shares
Reserved for bond conversion 30,000 shares

Security:
The bonds, in the opinion of counsel, upon compliance with the decree of sale mentioned in the President's letter and in the deed of trust to be given to secure the bonds, will be secured by a closed first mortgage upon the Company's four steamers and upon all the right, title and interest of the Company in the pier property below referred to. The Company states that it will comply with the provisions of said decree.

1. Real Estate:
The Company's New York terminal, Pier No. 32, North River, and other miscellaneous property $2,575,000
(Pier 32 alone has been appraised at $2,500,000 to $3,150,000).

2. Equipment:
Four steel passenger and freight steamers, appraised by Frank S. Martin & Son, Naval Surveyors, at $2,776,000

Insured for $2,750,000
Reproduction cost, new, estimated $4,600,000
Total Fixed Assets $5,351,000

Equivalent to approximately $1,781 per $1,000 bond; the bonds therefore represent less than 56% of the value of the fixed assets.

*The Deed of Trust will provide that the insured value of the steamers, plus $1,500,000, cleared for the pier (less the purchase price paid for it in 1925), must equal at least 125% of the aggregate of the outstanding bonds. Present insured value of steamers, $2,750,000, plus $1,500,000 for the pier, is $4,250,000, equal to over 100% of the outstanding bonds.

Earnings: Years 1918 to 1925 inclusive: (As per audited report):
The audit made of the predecessor company's books shows the following results for the last eight years.

Year	Gross Earnings	Not Applicable to Interest & Sinking Fund before Depreciation	Annual Interest Charge
1918	$1,620,626.76	$408,732.12
1919	1,999,711.43	699,976.36
1920	1,964,269.18	628,767.84	$198,000
1921	1,567,924.29	426,195.96
1922	1,765,737.56	487,547.52
1923	1,697,616.56	320,168.60
1924	1,844,908.53	260,553.69
1925	1,810,269.82	400,652.80

Average gross for 8 years $1,739,662.04
Average net for the 8 year period 400,273.01
Equal to 1.73 times interest and sinking fund charges.

*Operates under Government License.
It is well known that the appointment of the Director in 1921 was not considered by the failure of the line to earn adequate profits, but was due to the diversion of the profits earned into enterprises unrelated to the Company's business.

These bonds are offered when, as, and if issued and received by us and subject to approval of counsel.

Adjusting Your Auto Headlights

Simple Matter to Adjust Them Properly - Methods suggested by Which They Will Comply With Law and Make Travel Safer.

Note spread of light from these headlights. They are not focused or aimed properly. These lamps will cause glare.

Albany, April 26—With the roads again open for traffic, there will be an increasing number of vehicles on the highways. It is expected that at least 200,000 more vehicles will be operated in this state this year than there were last year. A certain proportion of these will be operated at night with the result that the glare question will become more serious than it has been in the past, unless headlamps are kept in proper adjustment. The prevention of dangerous glare is entirely a matter of adjustment and is largely in the hands of the motorist. If every motorist sees to it that

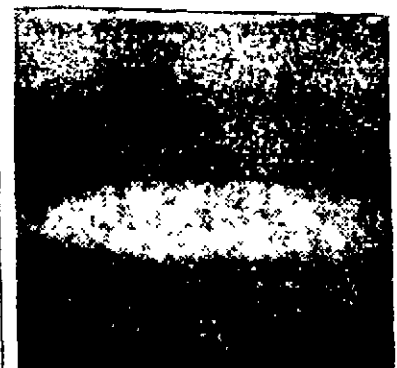

Note how narrow and sharp this beam pattern is. It is properly focused, but aimed too high and will cause glare.

er it is focused, so that the top of the beam remained below the height of the lamp centers when the car is fully loaded.

Three methods are suggested to the motorist for aiming his headlamps, keeping in mind that focusing the lamp by means of the screw in the back should be done previous to aiming:

1. If the motorist has a level space of twenty-five or thirty feet in front of his garage proper aiming can be done by placing a mark on the back wall of his garage at the proper height for locating the top of the beam, and another mark twenty-five feet from the wall for placing the lamps at the proper distance for testing. These marks will then be available for checking the adjustment every time he drives into the garage. The height of the mark on the wall should be about two inches lower than the height of the center of the lamps if the lamps are to be aimed with the car loaded. If the lamps are his headlights are always as they should be, night driving will cease to be an ordeal to be avoided.

Beam from one headlamp properly focused and aimed. Note that top of beam is at aiming mark.

With most headlights it is a comparatively simple matter to keep them adjusted. There are only two things to be kept in mind: first, keep lamps focused and, second, keep the lamps aimed properly. Any headlamp can be focused by means of turning the screw in the back of the lamp until the beam is as bright and as narrow as possible, and any headlamp can be aimed by tilting the lamp upward while the vehicle is empty. An allowance must be made for the uplift which occurs when a load is placed on the car. This allowance varies with the type of the vehicle. All necessary instructions for this purpose may be obtained at any of the offices of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles or at county clerk's offices.

2. If the motorist has space in front of his garage which is not level, he can have his headlights adjusted at an official headlight adjusting station and return to his own garage, stop his car so that the lamps are twenty-five feet from the back wall of his garage and make a mark along the top of the beam pattern. This should be done with the car empty. This market can be used thereafter for keeping his headlights aimed properly as in the case above.

3. If the motorist has not enough space in front of his garage but has sufficient space elsewhere in front of a wall or a fence, the wall or fence can be used for aiming the lamps in the same way that the wall of the garage is used in the above cases. Those who do not desire to do their own adjusting can have it done at any headlight adjusting station, of which there are about 1,500 established throughout the state.

The law is clear on the matter of requiring headlights to be in proper condition at all times so that they do not interfere with other users of the highways. It should be borne in mind that in most cases one adjustment a year is not sufficient for complying with this requirement. A considerable number of headlights will require at least one adjustment a month, a few even more than that. It depends entirely on the construction of the amount of use. A headlamp needs adjustment whenever it projects a dazzling light into the eyes of an observer standing about 100 feet in front of the car. If the dazzling light appears to the observer as a bright spot above or below the bulb, the lamp is out of focus, if it comes from the central portion of the lamp and surrounds the bulb, the lamp is aimed too high.

With the information and instructions given by the bureau, there is no good reason why every operator of a motor vehicle should not be able to familiarize himself with headlamp requirements. No motorist should consider the few minutes lost now and then in adjusting his headlights, or the small expense with having the headlights adjusted, of more importance than the prevention of accidents and the saving of life.

Death Mystery

Pretty Dorothy Paine, nineteen, winner of the title "Miss Laconia" in the recent Laconia, N. H., beauty contest, became engaged, went to Boston to buy her trousseau, and died mysteriously on her return. Police are investigating the cause of death.

Quail Retrieved Breed

The story is told by Arthur Drummond, a farmer of Elmidae, Kan., of an old hen that was determined to "set" but would not use the nests in the henhouse. She went out in the orchard and stole the nest of a quail. The old hen sat on ten eggs. She hatched eight quails and ten chicks. Then one day the mother quail came along and took all the little quails away.—Indianapolis News.

Last Day of Carnival

"Mardi Gras" gets its name from the French practice of parading a fat ox (beast of burden) during the celebration of the day. The name means fat Tuesday. "Mardi" being the French for Tuesday. It is the last day of carnival, the latter comprising the last three days before Lent. The feast or season of rejoicing observed with public merriment, revelry and feasts.

Nature's Wise Guidance

There are certain insects which are part of the vegetable food, but whose young must have it to live. The females are led mysteriously by the maternal instinct to deposit their eggs on plants which provide the right kind of food when it is needed. Experiments indicate that they are guided largely by the sense of smell to the desired plants.—Exchange.

Save the Strawberries by Using Straw Mulch

"Wheat straw makes the best mulch for strawberries," declares James G. Moore, horticulturist at the University of Wisconsin. "Oat straw may be used as second preference but wheat straw is more apt to be free from weed seed."

"Ordinarily, it is best to wait until the first freeze before mulching so that the straw and weeds do not cut up the bed. If the weather is such that there is no alternate freezing and thawing, the ground may be allowed to freeze several inches deep before mulching. Four inches of loose straw is about the right amount for this climate," concludes Moore.

Time of removing the mulch is determined by whether or not a person wishes an early or late berry crop. If the mulch is removed too soon, there is danger from frost. For a late crop the straw is left on until warm weather, or until the vines begin to grow. Leave as much straw on the vines as possible, advocates Moore, so the plants can get through. Some straw should be left between the rows, too, for a mulch. This aids the picking of the berries.

Wire Tree Protectors By far the best and cheapest protection against mice and rabbits in the wire screen tree protector. This makes a very durable and yet effective barrier against animals and at the same time it is something very easily adjusted to the tree. The cheapest way of making wire tree protectors is to buy galvanized wire cloth in rolls which are twice as wide as the final height of the protector will be. They can be moved around round rods to give them a spring.

serve at once. If the top of the omelet does not seem to be well cooked, set in a hot oven for a few minutes before folding.

Quick Tea Cakes.—Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter with one cupful of sugar, add two-thirds of a cupful of sour cream, one-fourth teaspoonful of soda, two beaten eggs, one teaspoonful of vanilla, and one and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with one teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat well; add a few raisins or one on top of each; bake in gem pans or iron and serve warm.

Prune and Date Jam.—Cook one pound of prunes until soft in a small amount of water. Remove the stones and add one pound of stoned chopped dates which have been cooked in a small amount of water. Add the juice of half a lemon with half a cupful of honey. Cook the mixture until thick.

Prune Cake.—Mix together and boil five minutes the following: Two cups each of brown sugar and boiling water, three cupfuls of soaked pitted prunes, stoned and chopped, one teaspoonful each of salt and cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful each of cloves and nutmeg. Dissolve a teaspoonful of soda in two tablespoonfuls of warm water, and add four tablespoonfuls of fat. Stir two cupfuls of flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and add the first mixture with a cupful of chopped nut meats. Bake in a tube cake pan for one hour.

Howe About—

By ED HOWE

The ancients had a notion that the three elemental thrills were wise, women and song. Women are the first thrill for men, and men for women. But money and gossip beat wine and song for both sexes.

I often think the world, poor as it is, suits the men better than it does women. Of complaints, probably more come from women than from men. And this is reasonable: women have the worst of it.

It is often necessary for gentlemen to become rougher than the rough necks. If violence is excusable on one side it is on the other.

A woman correspondent jumped all over me the other day. . . . And I was thinking I was rather a good fellow!

Every honest man must frequently think of himself: "I'm contemptible." . . . There is no complete remedy; but the churches, newspapers, teachers, neighbors, are continuously urging us to be less contemptible, and pointing out easy methods of partial improvement.

A week is too long for a visit, if there is a hotel in town.

Everyone thinks a good deal; all of us probably devote half our time to it. . . . It is important that when you think, you think correctly, and think mainly of things of importance. You can't always, or half the time, be sensible, but one should work toward correct thinking so far as he is able. Half the American thinking is villainy of one sort or another; and villainy is always doomed to failure.

I am often ashamed of my attitude toward women, but have never known one to admit she was ashamed of her attitude toward me.

Women always seem to feel it is the business of men to apologize. It is a controversy with a woman over a joint problem, she should confess half the blame, I think I should accept a little more, and try thereafter to be more deserving.

In what our literary men so grandly call the final analysis, I believe fifty-fifty very near the truth.

I know I should be effective, capable, just, patient, helpful to myself and the world. Above all, I should exercise great intelligence. . . . Certain great prizes are offered. Why do not I win them? Why do I plot while others soar? Why am I not occupying first page in the papers? . . . You ought to know: you are subject to the same envy that craves and embitters me. . . . I would if I could; I can't. . . . And that's what's the matter with you.

Author Immortal

The book that he has made readers his author this service in return, that so long as the book survives, his own remains immortal and cannot die.—De Bury.
